

Go Hayakawa Art — Super Dekoboko

The Unevenness as Proof of Life

Curriculum Vitae / Artist Profile

Artist Statement

“Super Dekoboko” (Super Unevenness) is the search for what remains human in a world becoming increasingly smooth through automation and optimization.

The surfaces of my paintings—thick layers, cracks, abrasions—are not gestures but accumulations of decisions. They reveal hesitation, pressure, and the subtle distortions that shape a life.

I do not resist technology. I work alongside it.

What interests me is the unevenness that survives beyond efficiency:
where a person leans, what they avoid, how their timing falters.

My practice records those shifts directly on the surface.

Unevenness is not a flaw to be corrected.

It is the texture of being alive.

Biography

Born in Japan in 1976.

Based in Tokyo and Saitama.

Hayakawa did not come through Japan’s traditional university art system.

Working outside academic structures, he developed an independent practice grounded in material thickness, erosion, and layered surfaces—an approach that later shaped the core of “Super Dekoboko” (Super Unevenness), where human distortion and temporal irregularity remain visible on the surface.

His work has been shown in museum exhibitions in Japan and China.

He explores how physical, personal, and temporal unevenness remains perceptible in a world increasingly optimized by technology.
